THE INTRODUCTION

Containing Some Observations upon the Excellency and Use of the Promises along with Directions for the Right Application of Them

Besides the many other evidences the Holy Scripture carries in it of a divine original, especially remarkable is the sublimity, excellency and reasonableness of the doctrine it teaches; the wisdom, holiness, and perfection of the rules of life it lays down; and the strength and efficacy of those sanctions with which it enforces its precepts. As the threatenings have the greatest tendency to strike an awe upon the mind, and to lay a powerful restraint upon every irregular inclination, so the promises are of such a nature as most strongly to excite to, and give the greatest encouragement in, a course of piety and universal holiness. It is therefore with the highest reason the apostle says of them, that there are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these we might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust, 2 Peter 1:4. They are great and excellent; whether we consider the nature and variety of the blessings contained in them, or their happy influence upon the mind.

They contain blessings of all sorts, of the most excellent nature, and suited to every circumstance. As man is made up of body as well as spirit, and the necessities of this present life must be provided for, as well as his happiness secured in the next; in the promises abundant care is taken of both, and provision is made for the peace, comfort, and welfare of the Christian, both in this, and in the other world. He is assured of the several necessaries and conveniences of this life, in such a measure as infinite wisdom sees best for him. And since we are exposed to various troubles and calamities, there are many promises made with relation to them; either that we shall be preserved from those afflictions, or, if it be necessary we should be exercised with them, that we shall be powerfully supported under them, and in the best time and way, delivered from them, after that they have been made to answer the most excellent ends upon us. Nor is it easy to say, what a vast variety of consolations are provided for our relief in those trials. But, however valuable, considering the circumstances of our present state, the promises relating to temporal enjoyments and afflictions may be, they are not to be compared with the excellency and glory of those spiritual and eternal blessings with which we are blessed in Christ Jesus, and of which we have the most clear, full, and express promises in the gospel. Therein, how great, how particular a regard is had to the condition of fallen, sinful man! What care is taken to ease the conscience under the burden of guilt, and the apprehensions of divine wrath, by the most gracious promises of pardon and mercy! What assurances given of reconciliation and acceptance with God through the blood and intercession of the Redeemer! To what glorious privileges and high honours is the Christian advanced! Such as, the adoption of children, a kind regard to all his prayers, the ministry of angels, and an interest in the grace, love and fellowship of God the Father, and of his eternal Son and Spirit. In the promises is contained all that grace which is requisite to refine and enoble our natures, to enlighten our understandings, to regulate our wills, and purify our affections; to preserve us from sin, and all the contrivances and snares of the devil and the world, and to exalt us to the highest perfection of holiness and happiness.

The manner in which these blessings are promised, still further adds to their value. They are not expressed in general or ambiguous terms, but with the greatest clearness and perspicuity. God would not leave his people at an uncertainty, concerning his kind intentions towards them. If the meaning of a promise seems doubtful in one place, it is abundantly cleared up in several others. Nor is it only here and there in some few passages, or in a cold and reserved manner, that God has signified his good will; but, upon the account of our dullness and slowness to believe what God has promised, he has both made use of the strongest words and phrases that language could furnish out, and has over and over, in great variety of expression, often repeated the assurances of his favour. He has contrived his promises so as to meet with all our objections, and remove all our doubts and fears; and herein he has been pleased to show an affection, tenderness, and condescension, which could not be expected from an earthly prince to his subjects, much less from the great and glorious Majesty of heaven and earth to sinful dust and ashes.

But what doth in the highest degree enhance the worth and excellency of the promises, is the evidences we have that they shall certainly be made good; since, as the apostle argues, Hebrews 6:17-18, we have for them both the word and oath of that God who cannot lie, that so we might have strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us. And of the covenant thus confirmed, Christ the Son of God is made the surety, Hebrews 7:22, having ratified it by his own blood. And that all the ever-blessed trinity might concur in establishing our faith upon the strongest foundation, the Holy Spirit of God witnesses to the truth of the promises, by his miraculous operations, when first poured forth upon the apostles, and by his sanctifying influences upon the hearts of all true Christians, both then and ever since. Hereby he inspires into them a lively hope, and furnishes them with well-grounded evidences of their interest in the promises; and their hope makes them not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in their hearts by the holy ghost, which is given unto them, Romans 5:5.

The promises therefore of the gospel being of so excellent a nature, and confirmed to us by such authority and evidence, cannot but have very great and happy influences upon the mind, when seriously attended to and applied with faith; especially as they are the means by which the Spirit of God carries on his work upon the soul. They are the strongest arguments to persuade the sinner to turn to God, the greatest encouragement to a humble, believing dependence upon the grace of Christ in the gospel, and the most powerful motives to sincere and universal obedience: Since by them we are assured, that every penitent sinner shall find the most gracious acceptance; that from the grace of Christ we shall derive sufficient strength and capacity for every duty; and that in keeping God's commands there is great reward. So that would we but duly consider the several promises made to every performance of duty, what a spur would this be to quicken our slow pace in the ways of holiness! What an encouragement to be stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord, 1 Corinthians 15:58.

A fixed, constant attention to the promises, and a firm belief of them, would prevent solicitude and anxiety about the concerns of this life. It would keep the mind quiet and composed in every change, and support and keep up our sinking spirits under the several troubles of life. In the multitude of my thoughts within me, thy comforts delight my soul, Psalm 94:19. Christians deprive themselves of their most solid comforts by their unbelief and forgetfulness of God's promises. For there is no extremity so great, but there are promises suitable to it, and abundantly sufficient for our relief in it.

A thorough acquaintance with the promises would be of the greatest advantage in prayer. With what comfort may the Christian address himself to God in Christ, when he considers the repeated assurances that his prayers shall be heard? With how much satisfaction may he offer up the several desires of his heart, when he reflects upon the texts wherein those very mercies are promised? And with what fervour of spirit and strength of faith, may he enforce his prayers by pleading the several gracious promises, which are expressly to his case?

Further, great assistance and encouragement may the Christian derive in his spiritual warfare, when he takes a view of the many promises of grace and strength to mortify sin, and to resist the devil; of success and a final victory in his conflicts with the enemies of his salvation; and of an incorruptible crown of glory to be given him as the reward of his firmness, constancy, and perseverance. A great deal more may be said (but that I would not too much enlarge this introduction) to show of what excellent use the promises would be if duly attended to, to promote all the exercises of the divine life, and inspire into a good man comfort and joy in every state of life.

That the Christian might have before him, in one view, the many great and precious promises scattered up and down in scripture, and in such a method as easily to find what is suitable to his case, I have drawn up the following collection. The occasion indeed, of my first entering upon it, was to assist some young persons, who very commendably and to their great advantage, are employed in improving themselves and one another, in the knowledge of the scriptures; one of their exercises being to treasure up in their memories and question one another upon the promises, under their several heads. At first I intended to put together a small number upon some principal subjects; but, upon searching the scriptures, more and more texts still offering themselves which I thought equally valuable to my purpose, this collection grew so large that the making of so many copies as were desired would have been a tedious work: For which reason, and in hopes it might serve the same useful end to others, I at last gave way to its being made public. Since I completed it, I have examined some other collections I have met with, and have added out of them those few texts which I had not before observed; so that, I believe, this is the fullest collection of the kind of any extant, at least that I have seen.

I have endeavoured to put them together in such a method as might be easiest and fittest for common use. I have not increased the heads to so great a variety of particulars as some may expect; both because too many divisions rather confound than assist the memory, and also the applying of the promises to cases too particular would have too much confined their use, when capable of a more extensive application. If any therefore lack the promises for some case they don't find mentioned, they may meet with them under some more general head, within which that case is comprehended. And for the same reason, some of the promises may seem not so properly to belong to the head under which they are ranged; but as they are near akin to it, I chose rather to put them together, than to multiply heads. There are also other texts which some may think should have been placed elsewhere; for instance, some of the promises under the head of Temporal Blessings are by some understood in a figurative sense of spiritual blessings, and so on the contrary. I have taken them in the sense that appeared to me most agreeable to the design of the Spirit of God; though sometimes, where I thought the words were capable of both senses, I have written them in both places. Many other texts also might be ranged under different heads; for example, either in the first part, among the blessings promised; or in the second, containing the graces and duties to which promises are made; and sometimes under either of those heads, which being nearly related, follow one the other; as the head of sanctifying grace in general, and converting grace. If therefore what you look for be not in one place, you may expect to find it in the other. For which purpose the references in the Table of Contents will be useful; for I have generally endeavoured to avoid repetitions. sometimes, indeed, the same text may be met with in different places, but then it is applied to different purposes; as when several blessings or duties are comprised in one, as Proverbs 22:4.

Though all the scriptures here collected under the name of promises are useful for the comfort and encouragement of Christians in the cases specified; yet they are expressed in different forms. Some contain direct promises and assurances of such and such blessings. Of these, some are made to all in general, according to the rules and limitations of the gospel; as Psalm 84:11, and Psalm 34:9-10. But others are addressed to particular good men in scripture, which yet every Christian may take comfort in. So that promise made to Joshua, in Joshua 1:5, I will not fail thee nor forsake thee, is by the apostle applied to Christians in general, Hebrews 13:6. In the same manner, promises made to particular churches are applicable to the church of God in general; as those in the Old Testament to the Jewish church, Isaiah 27:3, and Zechariah 2:5, and those to the churches in the New Testament, Philippians 4:19, Romans 16:20, and many more. The rule in both these cases is that whatsoever promises are made in scripture to particular persons, in cases and for reasons that equally concern other good men, they are applicable to the comfort of all and may be pleaded with faith in prayer. The words of the apostle afford a sufficient foundation for this observation, Romans 15:4, whatsoever things were written aforetime, were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope.

The promises also made in particular cases to persons in scripture may be applied to the encouragement of others, so far as the case and circumstances agree, though not absolutely and in their whole extent. Thus the promise made to Solomon (2 Chronicles 1:11, 13) of wisdom, and also of riches and honour, beyond all that were before him, because he asked of god wisdom rather than riches, etc., is applicable to Solomon only, in its whole extent; but yet gives encouragement to every good man to hope that if he seek of God wisdom above all other things, then he shall obtain a large measure of it, according to what his station requires, and also so much of other worldly advantages as God sees best for him, according to those more general promises, Proverbs 8:17-18. In the same manner, the promises made by Christ to his apostles of the Holy Spirit, to teach them all things and bring all things he had said to them to remembrance, John 14:26, and to guide them into all truth, John 16:13, though they are not to be applied to others in the same degree as to the other apostles, who were by the Spirit extraordinarily inspired and instructed in the whole revelation of the gospel, and infallibly secured from error, this being peculiar to their character as apostles; yet they encourage all other Christians to expect from the Spirit all that illumination, instruction, and guidance which is necessary for them in their several circumstances, upon the diligent use of all appointed means, so that they shall be preserved from all dangerous and fatal mistakes and errors, according to those promises, 1 John 2:20, 27; Psalm 25:12, and others made to good men in general.

Besides those scriptures that run in the form of promises, there are others which are observations or declarations of the blessings that generally attend the several exercises of piety and holiness; as Psalm 111:5 and Proverbs 18:10, and most of those collected out of the Proverbs and Ecclesiastes. but as these are observations made under the inspiration of the Spirit of God, they give the same encouragement to expect the blessings mentioned in them, as if they were in the form of promises.

Some of the texts do only express the experiences of good men in scripture, or their expectations from God; as Psalm 16:6, Psalm 23 throughout, and Psalm 71:20. Of which scriptures the same may be said as of those above: That as holy men therein spake under the direction of the Spirit of God, and what they say of themselves is recorded for our instruction and comfort, consequently other good men may assure themselves, in like circumstances, of the like favour and mercy. Thus, whereas the psalmist expresses his confidence in God's help against all his enemies, Psalm 118:6, the apostle applies it to all Christians, Hebrews 13:6, So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me.

Some of the texts are petitions put up by Christ for his church; as those taken out of John 17. These give the same encouragement as the promises do; for we are assured that whatever Christ asks for his people, is certainly granted.

The same may be said, in some degree, of the prayers put up by other saints in scripture, for themselves and others; especially the prophetic prayers, Genesis 49, Deuteronomy

33, and in other places. Since those prayers were delivered under the inspiration of the Spirit, we know they were agreeable to the will of God; and so far as circumstances are the same, all other good men may hope to be heard in asking the same blessings of God. But of this sort I've taken only a few, both because it is more difficult rightly and with judgment to apply them, and lest I should too much swell this collection.

The blessings promised, are either of a temporal, or of a spiritual and eternal nature: It may be necessary to lay down some rules, to direct the serious Christian in the right application of these different sorts of promises.

As to the promises of temporal blessings, and those that relate to temporal evils, it is acknowledged by all that they are not to be understood absolutely or universally, but with the limitation that as far as they may be for God's glory and for our good; both which are, in effect, one. Nor will these limitations lessen their value with any thinking, serious person. For all outward things are of such a nature as to be capable of being either good or evil to us, as circumstances vary. Riches, though in some circumstances they may be very useful and valuable, in which case God will bestow them according to the tenour of his promises; yet in others they may be, and often prove, very pernicious: No wise man, in that case, would desire them. Thus afflictions, in some instances, may be of the greatest advantage to us. Then they are mercies; the inflicting them is a token of favour, and the preventing them would be a judgment, instead of fulfilling a promise. Now it must be allowed that of all these circumstances, the infinitely wise and good God is the best judge; since he has before him, in one view, the whole compass of every case in all its circumstances, and is more concerned and watchful for our good than we can be ourselves. The promises therefore relating to these things should not lie by neglected; but we should fix our faith upon them for the mercies we want, with a firm dependence upon the power and faithfulness of God, though with an entire submission to his superior wisdom to choose what is best for us. I verily believe Christians often deprive themselves even of temporal favours from God for want of a more frequent, steadfast exercise of faith upon the promises relating to these things. They either ask not, or not in faith, and therefore receive nothing from God, James 1:6-7. Or, they desire and ask but not for right ends (to take notice of another limitation hinted at by the same apostle, James. 5:3). That is, not for God's honour, but to consume it upon their lusts; and so they ask amiss, and therefore receive not. This collection therefore will give great assistance to the faith of Christians when they observe how full and express the promises are, and how suitable to their several exigencies, even in things concerning this life.

It may be objected to many of the texts that they are taken out of the Old Testament and were promises made to the Jews under a dispensation, wherein a greater stress is laid upon temporal blessings than under the gospel; and consequently, that Christians can't expect so much from those promises.

I answer, that it is true, the gospel has a much greater tendency to draw our affections from, and lessen our regard to, outward felicity and prosperity, than the law, since it has brought in a better hope, and gives more clear discoveries and more full assurances of spiritual and eternal blessings, and recommends these as our main concern; and therefore our desires and expectations of temporal blessings ought to be very moderate, and bear no proportion with our concern for spiritual. But yet, that Christians may take comfort in, and apply to themselves the promises of the Old Testament, and in things relating to this life, is evident from that declaration of the apostle, 1 Timothy 5:8, Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come. Where the apostle affirms, not only that godliness is profitable to this, as well as another life, but that it has promises relating to both; by which it is probable he meant those of the Old Testament, a great part of the new being not then committed to writing, or not published among the churches. Besides, as was observed before, the promises made in the Old Testament the apostle applies to Christians, and that upon the principle above-mentioned, Romans 15:4, an instance of which we have, among others, in his pressing obedience to parents on Christians, Ephesians 6:2-3, from the temporal promise annexed to the fifth commandment delivered to the Jews. To which may be added, that there are many promises of temporal blessings to be found in the gospel, as full and as expressive as those in the Old Testament, as will appear upon the perusal of this collection.

Nor do I think the case of good men under the law so different from that of Christians with relation to outward blessings as some may apprehend. It is plain that those promises were not to them absolute or universal, but to be understood with the same limitations as now; and that in those times, as well as since, the righteous were frequently exercised with severe afflictions, and the wicked had many times a greater share of outward prosperity than even the best of men; the lack of a due attention to this was the reason of the heavy censures Job met with from his friends. The sentences therefore which in Job, in the Proverbs, and in other places, express the earthly advantages attending righteousness in its several branches, and the ill consequences of vice are not to be looked upon as universal positions, but rather as observations of the proper tendency of virtue and vice, and their natural connection with such and such benefits and detriments, though liable to some exceptions in particular cases, as most general observations and maxims are. And there is now the same connection established by God in the course of things between moral good and evil; and several advantages and disadvantages, though subject to such variations as God, in his wise providence, sees fit to make from his more settled rules.

As to the promises of spiritual and eternal blessings, they are to be applied according to the tenour of the gospel. It is to faith, repentance, love, and sincere obedience, that the promises in general are made of pardon, grace, and glory; as appears from a great multitude of texts here collected. And indeed, without these dispositions, none can justly lay claim to any of the temporal promises. But because, in many cases, a serious person may be doubtful whether he is converted or not, whether there be in him that faith, repentance, and holiness which may be a proof that he is in a state of favour with God, and so entitled to those promises; I observe, that as there is a difference between grace begun, in its first exercises, and when it is arrived to a confirmed habit; so many of the promises are made to the first beginnings and exercises of grace, in praying and seeking after God, in the use of appointed means, in turning from sin and coming to Christ. Thus the promises of a new heart are made to those who inquire after god, Ezekiel 36:26, 37, of wisdom to them that search for it, Proverbs 2:4-5, of the Spirit to them that ask it, Luke 11:13, and of rest in Christ to them that being weary and heavy laden, come to him, Matthew 11:28. Which therefore every one who finds in himself those beginnings of grace, may apply them to himself as an encouragement to go on.

It is also to be observed, that the other promises of divine influences, of the increase of grace, of preservation from sin, of grace to persevere to the end, etc., and so of everlasting life and glory, though every sincere Christian may apply them, and depend upon them, yet they all suppose the diligent use of all the means of grace, watchfulness, a constant application to, and dependence upon, the strength of Christ, and the grace of his Holy Spirit, and a sincere regard to all the other duties of the gospel; as appears from John 15:4, 10, and many other passages to be found in this collection, especially in the latter part.

To obtain the comfort of the promises in the second part, every one must see that they be in a good degree possessed of the graces, and that they diligently perform the duties, to which the promises are made; and that from a principle of faith in Christ, and love to God, expressed in an habitual care and endeavour to please him. For, whatever duty we do, without a real regard to God therein, and depending upon Christ for acceptance, in whom all the promises are yea and amen, we can expect no reward from him. God may justly reject such a claim, with, Did ye it at all to me, even to me? And for the same reason, the observing of some duties, while we knowingly allow ourselves in acts of disobedience to other commands, will not support our claim to the promises; because, if we acted with a sincere respect to God, we should show the same regard to all his known laws, James 2:10-11.

As a Christian ought to be concerned not only for himself, but for the whole church of God, and the interest of Christ's kingdom here on earth, I thought it very necessary to lay before him what the scripture affords for the raising of his hopes, and encouraging his prayers upon those important subjects. And this is the design of that collection of texts in the third part. But this I found more difficult than any other part whatsoever; for, in searching the scripture upon those subjects, I met with so many passages that had a relation to the state of the church, that a complete collection of them was inconsistent with my intended brevity; and many of the prophecies were so difficult to be understood, that it could not be expected that the generality of Christians should know how to make use of them. I have, however, endeavoured to avoid both these inconveniences by selecting those texts which are most full to my purpose, and most easy to be apprehended by an attentive reader; hoping that those scriptures being here laid together, which treat of the same subject, they would mutually illustrate and explain one another.

I am sensible that many of the texts I have brought, which foretell the enlargement and glory of the church, have already had, in some degree, their accomplishment in the conversion of the Gentiles to the Christian faith; but upon a thorough consideration of several of the prophecies concerning the spreading of the gospel throughout all nations, the subjection of all kings to the authority of Christ, and the glorious state of the church in the latter days, as Psalm 86:9, Isaiah 66:18, Daniel 7:27, Zechariah 14:9, etc, it appears to me that there's still to be expected a fuller accomplishment of them, than has yet been.

But which have been already fulfilled, and which still remain to be so, I leave to every man's judgment, upon considering and comparing the texts.

Though this collection has cost me not a little time and pains, I think it very well bestowed, not only upon the account of the advantage I have myself received from the study of the promises, and the assistance I still expect from this book for my private thoughts and compositions for the pulpit, by having it continually before me; but also in hopes it may be useful to others in several respects, for promoting the holiness and comfort of Christians. Here they have before them, in one view, the riches of the covenant of grace: here are all the strongest arguments to persuade to real religion, to recommend every duty, and to support in every afflicted and perplexed case. This book may be very useful to assist in prayer, both for the reasons before mentioned, and also because from hence one may be furnished with variety of proper matter and expression upon all the cases we are concerned to represent to God. And as the study of these promises would be to the advantage of all sorts of persons, it might be a very useful and easy exercise for children to be employed in learning some of the plainest texts under those heads which are most proper for them, and to question one another upon them, being instructed by their teachers in their sense and use. In this way the directors of the education of children in the charity schools, may make this book serve good purposes, for the instruction and improvement of their children in the knowledge of the scriptures. And I know of no better way of enriching the minds of children with useful and solid knowledge, than by making them well acquainted with the scriptures themselves, those pure unmixed, fountains of excellent and divine wisdom, and treasuring up in their memories a great number of select scriptures most suited to their capacity and use. For this end, I have frequently thought of making some proper collections, particularly for the benefit of the charity school at St. Albans, and of all other children whose parents or teachers shall think fit to make use of them; which perhaps*, I may hereafter finish, if this meets with acceptance.

*I had laid aside this design upon finding that there was a variety of such collections already published. But as some friends, to whom I have a great regard, think something of that nature more suited to the instruction of children is needed, and therefore have put me lately upon it, I am now drawing up a small collection for the press.

If we would reap the comfort and benefit of these promises, it is not enough that we have them by us, or now and then look into them; but we must thoroughly acquaint ourselves with them, store them up in our memories, and be often meditating upon them, that they may be ready for use when we most need them. And whatever pains we may be at on this account, the pleasure and advantage we shall receive will be a sufficient recompense: for these are pleasant words, that are as a honey-comb; sweet to the soul, and health to the bones, Proverbs 16:24, and therefore well deserve to be bound upon our fingers, and written upon the table of our hearts, Proverbs 7:3. And would serious Christians make the promises the frequent subject of their conversation together, and at the same time take notice of the several instances wherein they have been made good to themselves, and others within their observation, it would both impress them upon their memories, and very much increase their force and influence upon their hearts.

But care must be taken to understand them in their true sense, and rightly to apply them. Mistaken apprehensions of scripture have often been the cause of people deceiving themselves with ungrounded comforts and expectations; or, at least, they have not built their comforts upon proper texts, though they may have had sufficient foundation for them in other places. The comparing one scripture with another, as they lie together, will be in many cases of great use to assist in the right understanding of them. And in most instances, it will be still a further advantage to turn to the place quoted and consider the circumstances of the text, and its connection with the context. This will show how far there is an agreement of your case with that referred to in the text; and, consequently, how far the promise is to be applied, whether absolutely and in its whole extent, or only in some degree and with limitations.

In particular cases, we may draw comfort, not only from the promises peculiar to that case, but also from those that are of a more general nature. As under sickness, we may have relief, not only from those scriptures which expressly relate to that circumstance, but also from the promises relating to trouble in general, and the assurances of God's love, care, and readiness to help his people, etc, which the Table of Contents will easily direct to.

That we may have the comfort of the promises, a steady exercise of faith is above all things necessary. For this purpose, we must impress upon our minds the power, goodness, and faithfulness of God, and the experience of good men in every age; and by this means, and by an attentive consideration of the promises, suck at those breasts of consolation till we be satisfied, Isaiah 66:11. But at the same time our eyes must be fixed upon the Lord Jesus Christ, as the only foundation of our hopes, in and through whom alone all the promises are made good to us; and upon the Holy Spirit the Comforter, that through his powerful influences we may rightly understand and apply, firmly believe, and clearly discover the excellency of the promises, and so taste that the Lord is gracious.

Constantly plead the promises with God in prayer. He has thereby bound himself to his people, as with a note under his hand. Go with it therefore to God, firmly depending upon his faithfulness; he will acknowledge his own handwriting, and answer your demands accordingly. Rest yourself therefore upon God and wait patiently for him, being assured he'll not be unmindful of his promise; but leave it to his infinite wisdom to fulfill it, in that way and at that time he sees best.

But remember, the promises of God do not discharge from, but encourage and oblige to, the diligent use of all proper and lawful means. Christ has promised food and raiment; but the slothful and careless must not expect the benefit of that promise. The same may be said of the spiritual blessings promised. The soul of the slothful desireth, and hath nothing: but the soul of the diligent shall be made fat, Proverbs 13:4.

To conclude: Let the Christian live a life of faith upon the promises. A great part of the riches of the nation at this day, consists in the credit that is given to notes, bonds, assignments, etc. I am sure that the riches of the Christian lies chiefly in the assignments he has under God's hand, of the most valuable blessings both of this and a better life. Let him then know how to value these as the truest riches, and to make use of them upon all occasions; he'll find no want of any good thing. If he has it not in hand, he has it in the promise ready whenever he needs it. So that he may live entirely free from solicitude and anxious care, committing himself and all his concerns, to that God who careth for him.

I am willing to take this opportunity of recommending it to those young persons, for whose benefit this collection was first undertaken, to persevere in their endeavours to improve themselves and one another, in the knowledge of the promises and other parts of scripture which may be most useful to them, that the word of Christ may dwell in them richly in all wisdom; and to others, especially of their age, to imitate their example in the same commendable way of employing their time. To how much better account will this turn, than the vanities that ordinarily fill up the conversation of youth, or those wrangling disputes and controversies, which eat out the heart of serious, practical religion! The advantage which those who have tried this course, have reaped from it, sufficiently encourages their perseverance in it. May they, and all others, who with them delight in and search after the treasures of divine wisdom in the scriptures, not only have their minds beautified and enriched with it, but feel its influence in their hearts and lives. May they be filled with the knowledge of the will of God, in all wisdom and spiritual understanding, that they may walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God.

Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith? Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? For your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things" (Matthew 6:25, 30-32).

"I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land: and they shall dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods. There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling" (Psalm 91:1-2, 4, 10).

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the LORD, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber. Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. The LORD shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul. "And I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them" (Isaiah 42:16).

8. Of Honor

"And the LORD shall make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the LORD thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them" (Deuteronomy 28:13).

"If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will my Father honour" (John 12:26).

"Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say they are Jews, and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee" (Revelation 3:9).

9. Of Success And Prosperity

"He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper" (Psalm 1:3).
"Commit thy way unto the LORD; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass" (Psalm 37:5).

"I will cry unto God most high; unto God that performeth all things for me" (Psalm 57:2).

"And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree are the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands. They shall not labour in vain, nor bring forth for trouble; for they are the seed of the blessed of the LORD, and their offspring with them" (Isaiah 65:21-23).

As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly. Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord GOD: and not that he should return from his ways, and live? Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin. Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel? None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him: he hath done that which is lawful and right. "And God said to Solomon, Because this was in thine heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth, or honour, nor the life of thine enemies, neither yet hast asked long life; but hast asked wisdom and knowledge for thyself, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made thee king: wisdom and knowledge is granted unto thee; and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and honour" (2 Chronicles 1:11-12).

Knowledge of God and Christ

"Unto you that hear shall more be given. For he that hath, to him shall be given: and he that hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath" (Mark 4:24-25).

"Hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness. Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it. For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace" (Isaiah 55:2-3, 10-12).

"Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls" (James 1:21).

"We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts" (2 Peter 1:19).

"The law of the LORD is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward" (Psalm 19:7-8, 11).

"The commandment is a lamp; and the law is light; and reproofs of instruction are the way of life" (Proverbs 6:23).

"The holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (2 Timothy 3:15).

"For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Hebrews 4:12).

Loving the Word

"This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success" (Joshua 1:8).

"Therefore shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul, and bind them for a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes; that your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD swore unto your fathers to give them, as the days of heaven upon the earth" (Deuteronomy 11:18, 21).

12. To Fasting

"Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly: gather the people, sanctify the congregation, assemble the elders, gather the children, and those that suck the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet. let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, Spare thy people, O LORD, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God? Then will the LORD be jealous for his land, and pity his people" (Joel 2:15-18).

Fasting in Secret

"Thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face; 18 That thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly" (Matthew 6:17-18).

13. To Baptism

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16).

"Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead" (Colossians 2:12).

"Wherein [that is, in the ark] few, that is, eight souls were saved by water. The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 3:20-21).

"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Romans 6:3-4).

14. To the Lord's Supper

"[We] have been all made to drink into one Spirit" (1 Corinthians 12:13).

"The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?" (1 Corinthians 10:16).

"Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins" (Matthew 26:26-28).

"Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father: so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me. It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life" (John 6:54-57, 63).

"Eat, O friends; drink, yea, drink abundantly, O beloved" (Song of Solomon 5:1).

"I sat down under his shadow with great delight, and his fruit was sweet to my taste. He brought me to the banqueting house, and his banner over me was love" (Song of Solomon 2:3-4).

15. To Good Discourse

"A wholesome tongue is a tree of life. A man hath joy by the answer of his mouth: and a word spoken in due season, how good is it!" (Proverbs 15:4, 23).

"Then they that feared the LORD spake often one to another: and the LORD hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the LORD, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the LORD of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him" (Malachi 3:16-17).

"A man shall eat good by the fruit of his mouth" (Proverbs 13:2).

"Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul, and health to the bones" (Proverbs 16:24).

"A man's belly shall be satisfied with the fruit of his mouth; and with the increase of his lips shall he be filled. Death and life are in the power of the tongue: and they that love it shall eat the fruit thereof" (Proverbs 18:20-21).

"The mouth of the upright shall deliver them. A man shall be satisfied with good by the fruit of his mouth: and the recompence of a man's hands shall be rendered unto him. The tongue of the wise is health" (Proverbs 12:6, 14, 18).

The Government of the Tongue

19. To the Keeping of the Sabbath

"The LORD blessed the Sabbath day, and hallowed it" (Exodus 20:11).

"If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the LORD, honourable; and shalt honour him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words: then shalt thou delight thyself in the LORD; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it" (Isaiah 58:13-14).

"Blessed is the man that doeth this, and the son of man that layeth hold on it; that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil. The sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the LORD, to serve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant; even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for mine house shall be called an house of prayer for all people" (Isaiah 56:2, 6-7).

Chapter Two In the Performance of Duty Toward Men

1. To Obedience to Parents

"Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. Honour thy father and mother; (which is the first commandment with promise;) that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth" (Ephesians 6:1-3).

"My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother: for they shall be an ornament of grace unto thy head, and chains about thy neck" (Proverbs 1:8-9).

"But if any widow have children or nephews [grandchildren], let them learn first to shew piety at home, and to requite their parents: for that is good and acceptable before God" (1 Timothy 5:4).

"Children, obey your parents in all things: for this is well pleasing unto the Lord" (Colossians 3:20).

"My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother: bind them continually upon thine heart, and tie them about thy neck. When thou goest, it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, it shall keep thee; and when thou awakest, it shall talk with thee" (Proverbs 6:20-22).

"Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Because ye have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and kept all his precepts, and done according unto all that he hath commanded you: therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Jonadab the son of Rechab shall not want a man to stand before me for ever" (Jeremiah 35:18-19).

2. To Good Education

"And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt write them upon the door posts of thine house, and upon thy gates: that your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give them, as the days of heaven upon the earth" (Deuteronomy 11:19-21).

Correction of Children

"Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him" (Proverbs 22:15).

"Withhold not correction from the child: for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die. Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell" (Proverbs 23:13-14).

"The rod and reproof give wisdom: but a child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame. Correct thy son, and he shall give thee rest; yea, he shall give delight unto thy soul" (Proverbs 29:15, 17).

3. To a Good Wife

"Every wise woman buildeth her house" (Proverbs 14:1).

"A gracious woman retaineth honour: and strong men retain riches" (Proverbs 11:16).

"Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies. Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come. Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the LORD, she shall be praised. Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates" (Proverbs 31:10, 25, 28, 30-31).

4. To Faithful Servants

"Whoso keepeth the fig tree shall eat the fruit thereof: so he that waiteth on his master shall be honoured" (Proverbs 27:18).

"A wise servant shall have rule over a son that causeth shame, and shall have part of the inheritance among the brethren" (Proverbs 17:2).

"Servants, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto Christ; not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart; with good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men: knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free" (Ephesians 6:5-8).

"And it shall be, when he sitteth upon the throne of his kingdom, that he shall write him a copy of this law in a book out of that which is before the priests the Levites: and it shall be with him, and he shall read therein all the days of his life: that he may learn to fear the LORD his God, to keep all the words of this law and these statutes, to do them: that his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not aside from the commandment, to the right hand, or to the left: to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children, in the midst of Israel" (Deuteronomy 17:18-20).

6. To Obedient Subjects

"Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme; or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well. For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men" (1 Peter 2:13-15).

"Whoso keepeth the commandment [the king's] shall feel no evil thing: and a wise man's heart discerneth both time and judgment" (Ecclesiastes 8:5).

"And I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the LORD" (Jeremiah 31:14).

"The elders which are among you I exhort... feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock. And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away" (1 Peter 5:1-4).

"These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand" (Revelation 2:1).

"And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together" (John 4:36).

"Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his lord shall make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of meat in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Of a truth I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all that he hath" (Luke 12:42-44).

"I will also clothe her priests with salvation: and her saints shall shout aloud for joy" (Psalm 132:16).

"The LORD is with me as a mighty terrible one: therefore my persecutors shall stumble, and they shall not prevail: they shall be greatly ashamed; for they shall not prosper: their everlasting confusion shall never be forgotten" (Jeremiah 20:11).

"Behold, I have made thy face strong against their faces, and thy forehead strong against their foreheads. As an adamant harder than flint have I made thy forehead: fear them not, neither be dismayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious house" (Ezekiel 3:8-9).

"Thus saith the LORD, If thou return, then will I bring thee again, and thou shalt stand before me: and if thou take forth the precious from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth: let them return unto thee; but return not thou unto them. And I will make thee unto this people a fenced brasen wall: and they shall fight against thee, but they shall not prevail against thee: for I am with thee to save thee and to deliver thee, saith the LORD. And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible" (Jeremiah 15:19-21).

"I will give you a mouth and wisdom, which all your adversaries shall not be able to gainsay nor resist" (Luke 21:15).

"Levi hath no part nor inheritance with his brethren; the LORD is his inheritance, according as the LORD thy God promised him" (Deuteronomy 10:9).

"The LORD said unto me, Say not, I am a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak. Be not afraid of their faces: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the LORD. They shall fight against thee; but they shall not prevail against thee; for I am with thee, saith the LORD, to deliver thee" (Jeremiah 1:7-8, 19).

8. To Them that Receive and Harken to Ministers

"He that heareth you heareth me" (Luke 10:16).

"Believe in the LORD your God, so shall ye be established; believe his prophets, so shall ye prosper" (2 Chronicles 20:20).

"He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me. [See John 13:20]. He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward" (Matthew 10:40-41).

"Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you" (2 Corinthians 13:11).

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard: that went down to the skirts of his garments; As the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for there the LORD commanded the blessing, even life for evermore" (Psalm 133:1-3).

"We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death. My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth. And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him" (John 3:14, 18-19).

for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell" (Matthew 5:29-30).

Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you" (Matthew 5:10-12).

"If so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? As it is written, For thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter. Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us" (Romans 8:17, 35-37).

"Persecuted, but not forsaken" (2 Corinthians 4:9).

If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified" (1 Peter 4:12-14).

To Them that are Excommunicated Unjustly

3. To Patience And Submission

"That ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises" (Hebrews 6:12).

"It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the LORD. It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth. He sitteth alone and keepeth silence, because he hath borne it upon him. He putteth his mouth in the dust; if so be there may be hope. For the Lord will not cast off for ever" (Lamentations 3:26-29, 31).

But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing. Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (James 1:2-4, 12).

"Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord; that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy" (James 5:7-8, 11).

4. To Perseverance

"Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Galatians 6:9).

"Look to yourselves, that we lose not those things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward. Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son" (2 John 8-9).

"Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father. And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming" (1 John 2:24, 28).

"If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you" (John 15:7).

"He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels. Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name. Let the whole earth be filled with his glory" (Psalm 72:8, 11, 17, 19).

"And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the LORD'S house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem" (Isaiah 2:2-3). I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; to open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house" (Isaiah 42:1, 4, 6-7).

Behold, these shall come from far: and, lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim. Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold: all these gather themselves together, and come to thee. As I live, saith the LORD, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee, as a bride doeth. It shall come, that I will gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come, and see my glory. And I will set a sign among them, and I will send those that escape of them unto the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal, and Javan, to the isles afar off, that have not heard my fame, neither have seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the Gentiles. [See verses 18, 21.] And I saw no temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it. And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof. And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it.
